FOR THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA

UNITED STATES OF AMERICA	:

v.	:

RESPONSE TO APPLICATION FOR ACCESS TO VIDEO EXHIBITS

The United States of America, by and through its attorney, the United States Attorney for the District of Columbia, hereby responds to the petitioners’ application to access video exhibits submitted to the Court in the above-captioned case (ECF 296). Petitioners represent news organizations, which have moved this Court to disclose video evidence provided to the Court in connection with the pretrial detention hearing for the defendant in this case, pursuant to the procedure outlined by this Court in Standing Order 21-28 (BAH) in In re Press Coalition’s Motion for Access to Video Exhibits and to Set Aside Standing Order No. 21-28. The government is in agreement that the videos submitted to this Court can be released in accordance with the procedure outlined by this Court. See Standing Order 21-28, at 5-6.

The D.C. Circuit has consistently employed the six-factor “Hubbard test”¹ when determining whether the common-law right of access to judicial records requires those records to be made available to the public for copying and inspection. Applied in the general context of video exhibits admitted into evidence in court hearings involving defendants charged with criminal offenses related to the January 6, 2021 breach of the U.S. Capitol, and absent order of the court, that test generally weighs in favor of allowing public access to these exhibits.

The petitioners' filing seeks three video exhibits the government provided to the Court on April 12, 2021, as exhibits to the government's opposition to the defendant's motion for bond (ECF 152). The Court presided over the detention hearing held in this matter in the District of Columbia on April 14, 2021. Neither party sought a sealing order for the videos upon their submission.

Therefore, because the videos were used in this Court's decision on detention, and they were not subject to a sealing order, the government does not object to their disclosure, including their release for recording, copying, downloading, retransmitting or further broadcasting.

Respectfully submitted,
