

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
FOR THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA

UNITED STATES OF AMERICA

v.

ANTHONY ROBERT WILLIAMS,

Defendant.

Criminal Action No. 21-377 (BAH)

Chief Judge Beryl A. Howell

MEMORANDUM AND ORDER

Defendant Anthony Robert Williams faces trial on June 27, 2022, on a five-count indictment arising from his alleged conduct at the U.S. Capitol on January 6, 2021. Pending before the Court is the government’s opposed Motion in Limine to Preclude Improper Defense Arguments and Evidence (“Gov’t’s Mot.”), ECF No. 37, seeking to preclude defendant from pursuing a trio of hypothesized lines of defense. For the reasons discussed below, the motion is granted.

I. DISCUSSION

The government “requests that the Court issue an order precluding the defendant from the following: (1) arguing any entrapment by estoppel defense related to law enforcement; (2) offering evidence or argument concerning any claim that by allegedly failing to act, law enforcement made the defendant’s entry into the United States Capitol building or grounds or his conduct therein lawful; and (3) arguing or presenting evidence of alleged inaction by law enforcement unless the defendant specifically observed or was otherwise aware of such conduct.” Gov’t’s Mot. at 1. Each component of the government’s motion is examined in turn.

A. Entrapment by Estoppel

To prove an entrapment by estoppel defense, which the government seeks to preclude, “a defendant criminally prosecuted for an offense must prove (1) that a government agent actively misled him about the state of the law defining the offense; (2) that the government agent was responsible for interpreting, administering, or enforcing the law defining the offense; (3) that the defendant actually relied on the agent's misleading pronouncement in committing the offense; and (4) that the defendant's reliance was reasonable in light of the identity of the agent, the point of law misrepresented, and the substance of the misrepresentation.” United States v. Chrestman, 525 F. Supp. 3d 14, 31 (D.D.C. 2021) (quoting United States v. Cox, 906 F.3d 1170, 1191 (10th Cir. 2018)).

Here, defendant has proffered absolutely no evidence supporting any element of the entrapment-by-estoppel affirmative defense. Further, even if he had, the logic in Chrestman that a U.S. President cannot unilaterally abrogate statutory law applies with equal force to government actors in less powerful offices, such as law enforcement officers protecting the U.S. Capitol Building.

Defendant rebuts none of this, offering only a threadbare opposition that Chrestman reaches only the pretrial release context, while ignoring that the legal principles articulated were not limited to that context. Def.’s Resp. Gov’t Mot. Preclude Def. Args. and Evid. (“Def.’s Opp’n”) at 1, ECF No. 49. In addition, defendant expresses the view that precluding ex ante any categories of argument and testimony is “not appropriate” since no testimony has yet been taken. Id. at 2. Given, however, that a motion in limine by its nature does exactly that—rule in advance as to whether certain evidence may be introduced or argument made—defendant’s last gasp argument falls flat.

B. Conduct Purportedly Made Lawful Due to Officer Inaction

Next, the government seeks to preclude arguments or testimony suggesting that alleged inaction by law enforcement officers somehow caused defendant's conduct to be lawful. Gov't's Mot. at 3. Defendant offers no substantive rebuttal. See Def.'s Opp'n.

Settled caselaw makes clear that law officer inaction—whatever the reason for the inaction—cannot sanction unlawful conduct. See Cox v. Louisiana, 379 U.S. 559, 569–70 (1965); United States v. Gutierrez-Gonzalez, 184 F.3d 1160, at 1168–69 (10th Cir. 1999) (holding defendant's belief that he was legally in the United States was not reasonable despite an INS clerk failing to arrest defendant “on the spot” when he illegally re-entered the country); Garcia v. Does, 779 F.3d 84, 95 (2d Cir. 2015) (en banc) (declining to extend the entrapment-by-estoppel defense to a case that, like Cox v. Louisiana, involved the location and movements of protestors who argued that their prosecuted conduct had been implicitly approved by the police, but could not show that it was “affirmatively authorized” by the police). Thus, defendant is precluded from arguing that law enforcement, by failing to act or censure his conduct, somehow made any of his otherwise allegedly unlawful conduct lawful.

C. Officer Inaction Not Perceived by Defendant

Finally, the government seeks to preclude defendant from presenting evidence or argument about alleged inaction by law enforcement officers, except to the extent that defendant observed or was otherwise actually aware of such inaction. Gov't's Mot. at 3–4. The “government concedes that the conduct of law enforcement officers may be relevant to the defendant's state of mind on January 6, 2021.” Id. at 3. As a logical matter, however, any action or inaction of which defendant was not aware cannot possibly have had any effect on his state-of-mind and is inadmissible as irrelevant under Federal Rule of Evidence 401.

Defendant does not challenge this basic proposition but instead suggests that unless and until defendant testifies whether he was or was not aware of specific officer conduct, any testimony about officer action or inaction must be fair game. Def.'s Opp'n at 2. Defendant has it backwards. Although he need not testify, he must somehow establish his awareness of the alleged inaction. Fortunately, he can do so any number of ways, such as a good faith proffer outside the presence of the jury, see United States' Reply Def.'s Resp. Gov't's Mot. in Limine Preclude Improper Defense Args. and Evid. at 3, ECF No. 61, or using other evidence to show that defendant was adequately nearby the alleged inaction at the correct time to have perceived and understood such inaction as "g[iving] permission to the defendant to enter the Capitol," Gov't's Mot. at 2. Short of that, defendant cannot present a defense that he is not culpable of otherwise unlawful conduct due to inaction by law enforcement officers at the Capitol.

II. ORDER

For the foregoing reasons, it is hereby

ORDERED that the government's Motion in Limine to Preclude Improper Defense Arguments and Evidence ("Gov't's Mot."), ECF No. 37, is GRANTED.

SO ORDERED.

Date: June 8, 2022

BERYL A. HOWELL
Chief Judge